Skem man, 23, pleads guilty to plotting to murder Rosie Cooper

A 23-year-old man from Skelmersdale pleaded guilty at the Old Bailey yesterday (Tuesday) to plotting to murder West Lancs MP, Rosie Cooper.

Last summer, Jack Renshaw bought a Gladius machete to kill Ms Cooper.

On the first day of a trial, expected to last five weeks, Renshaw, an alleged member of the banned far-right group National Action, also pleaded guilty to preparing acts of terrorism and making a threat to kill police officer Victoria Henderson.

National Action is a neo-Nazi group which was banned by the Home Secretary after it backed the murder of MP Jo Cox in 2016.

The jury in the case have been directed by the judge, Mr Justice Jay, to deliver a guilty verdict on the first two charges Renshaw faces.

Also on trial are Matthew Hankinson, 24, from Newton-le-Willows; Andrew Clarke, 33, from Prescot; Christopher Lythgoe, 32, and Michal Trubini, 35, both from Warrington; and Garron Helm, 24, from Seaforth.

All deny membership of National Action.

Lythgoe also denies a charge that he gave Renshaw permission to murder the MP on behalf of National Action on July 1, 2017.

Prosecutor, Duncan Atkinson QC, said at the start of the case: "This case concerns these defendants and their support for, involvement in and membership of the proscribed racist neo-Nazi group National Action."

MP Rosie Cooper.

The prosecutor continued to say that Renshaw wanted to carry out an act which was "politically and racially motivated murder" in the name of National Action. He went on to claim Renshaw had the backing of Lythgoe.

According to Mr Atkinson, National Action have since 2013 carried out a "campaign of virulent anti-Semitic and homophobic propaganda." He added the group recruit youths through violent images and "hate-filled language."

The prosecutor said the defendants carried on being members of National Action after it was banned.

The case continues.

CHARITY'S FIGHT FOR SURVIVAL!

Report by Henry James

AN award-winning West Lancs-based charity which employs young people with disabilities to recycle donated mobility equipment will be forced to close in August unless £50,000 can be found to secure its future.

Brighter Future Workshop, which is based at Greenhey Place in Skelmersdale, opened for business in 2005 and since then has won a host of awards.

These include a Queen's Award for Sustainable Development; Best Social Enterprise England; Best Social Enterprise UK; Best Social Firm in Europe; Deloitte Innovation Pioneers; and The Big Society Award.

The charity was also honoured in October 2012 by a visit from The Countess of Wessex.

Peter Cousins MBE, chairman of Brighter Future Workshop, said: "We are fighting to keep Brighter Future going - it's too good to lose - and we are looking for any help we can get to ensure we save it.

"We want to encourage those people that we set out to help, to use our charity to purchase their mobility needs.

"By doing this they will be supporting the training of young people with physical or learning disabilities within our workshop.

"There are potentially 28,000 people with disabilities or long-term needs in West Lancs. In buying from Brighter Future you will enable us to connect with and support these young disabled people to have better lives.

Happier times . . .the Countess of Wessex's visit to the Brighter Future Workshop in 2012

"Local businesses could help by providing corporate sponsorship to help with our overheads; or individuals or groups could sponsor a trainee or a technician to train the trainees at Brighter Future. This help would be greatly received and could save our charity.

"We earn 92% of our costs and if we could find £50k we could guarantee our survival."

The charity provides a wide range of mobility scooters, wheelchairs and disability aids.

Since its foundation Brighter Future has trained more than 350 young disabled people during more than 120,000 training hours.

And its trainees have helped to refurbish more than 35,000 pieces of mobility equipment to help the disabled.

Cloud hangs over shop jobs after Poundworld enters administration

Report by Tom Martin

STAFF at the two Poundworld stores in West Lancashire face an uncertain future after the company went into administration.

More than 5,000 jobs nationally are now at risk after the discount retailer announced on Monday (June 11) that it has taken a decision to appoint administrators for its 355 shops, including those at the Hattersley Centre Retail Park in Ormskirk and Skelmersdale's Concourse Shopping Centre.

It was reported last week that talks had taken place with a potential buyer in the form of R Capital, but this collapsed, meaning that the chain felt it had no other option but to go into administration.

A Poundworld statement reads: "Like many high street retailers, Poundworld has suffered from high product cost inflation, decreasing footfall, weaker consumer confidence and an increasingly competitive discount retail market."

Administrators Deloitte stress the stores will continue to trade as normal with no redundancies at this time.

Poundworld, which has two stores in West Lancashire, has gone into administration

Urgent talks

Clare Boardman, joint administrator at Deloitte, said: "The retail trading environment in the UK remains extremely challenging and Poundworld has been seeking to address this through a restructure of its business. Unfortunately, this has not been possible."

It has been reported that Poundworld has been losing money for the past two years and losses for the financial year 2016-17 stood at £17.1million.

Investment company TPG, which bought a majority stake in Poundworld in 2015, also controls the restaurant chain Prezzo whose landlords and creditors agreed a restructuring last month.

Meanwhile, shopworkers' trade union Usdaw are seeking urgent talks with the administrators.

Dave Gill, Usdaw National Officer, said: "Poundworld staff are deeply concerned about their jobs after the company failed to secure a rescue package. We are seeking urgent talks with the administrators to represent the best interest of our members and urge them to find a buyer for the company.

"Regrettably Poundworld do not recognise Usdaw and they have not been keeping us informed of developments. We are hopeful that the administrators will engage with us to help save jobs.

"We welcome Deloitte's initial approach for Poundworld to continue to trade while a buyer for all or part of the business is sought and that there are no redundancies or store closures at this time.

"Usdaw is providing the support and advice our members require at this very difficult time and we expect the administrators to ensure all staff are treated with dignity and are fully consulted."

Sewing Rooms crew join capital parade to mark centenary of women winning the vote

AFTER weeks of community involvement and preparation, The Sewing Rooms Skelmersdale banner to mark 100 years since women got the vote was part of a parade through the streets of London on Sunday (June 10).

A small group from Skelmersdale, including the designer, Laura Scott; Councillors Claire Cooper and Maureen Nixon; Friends of Skelmersdale Library chair, Mary Whitby; and Mary Jones carried the banner from Park Lane to the Houses of Parliament, following the route the suffragettes took 100 years ago.

The inspiration for the banner came from the Suffragette colours of purple, green and white and the pansy was the symbol of the women's suffrage movement.

Many different community groups in Skelmersdale made the flowers which were then hand-stitched by Laura on to the main banner with help from textile students from Manchester University.

The material for the banner was provided by Panaz.

Processions, commemorating 100 years of Women's Suffrage, also took place in Belfast, Cardiff and Edinburgh, as well as London and were produced by public arts company Artichoke, whose CEO, Helen Marriage, said: "I'd like to pay tribute to our commissioners 14-18 Now and the many other supporters who have made this historic event possible.

"Most especially, I salute the thousands of women who have embraced the idea of processions and, following in the footsteps of their suffragette and suffragist ancestors, created an unforgettable image commemorating 100 years of women voting in a joyful, inclusive occupation of our city streets.

"It was a wonderful day and the whole group felt immensely proud to be able to represent the women of Skelmersdale at such an event and thrilled to have featured on the national news as part of coverage of the event."

The group from West Lancashire carry the banner on the parade

Charity in fight for survival

Peter added: "It is very sad for our charity and staff, but mostly for the many young disabled people who will lose their placements in our workshop. These trainees help to recycle mobility equipment.

"If West Lancs loses Brighter Future it will be a serious blow to people with disabilities.

"Our training programmes have helped these disabled and disadvantaged people whom others might have considered untrainable, to become motivated trainees, enabling them to help themselves to remove barriers and play a fuller role in life and society, positively enhancing their lives."

The charity has had no outside funding for three years but despite that has still managed to cover 92% of its total costs.

However, as a result of rising costs the remaining 8% that they need to become sustainable equates to more than £100,000.

Peter added: "Costs are escalating while the prices of mobility equipment has been slashed by mainstream providers.

"It is becoming impossible for us to operate at the moment as our sales are in decline so, unless we can find extra funding, we will have no alternative but to close the charity while we are still solvent."

Council scraps blue bin charge and puts back changeover deadline

Tory leader says planned motion forced cabinet's hand

Report by Kenny Parker

FOLLOWING the recent furore over the introduction of changes to the blue bin recycling scheme in West Lancs, the borough council has put back the deadline for bringing them in and said the £25 charge will be scrapped.

The controversial change requiring residents to change using blue bins for recycling glass, plastic bottles and cans has now been delayed until October. It was due to take effect from Monday, July 16.

The Conservative group on West Lancs Council had already announced it was going to table a motion at next month's full council meeting calling on the Labour-controlled authority to postpone the introduction of the new blue bin scheme and also to scrap the charge for those who don't have one and refunding those residents who had already paid.

However, the latest development in the ongoing saga, has seen the Labour leadership admit that the policy was flawed and commit to making amendments.

Both the Conservatives and the independent Our West Lancashire group had said the charge was unfair as residents had been given the choice of keeping their blue box or having a free bin when the blue bin scheme was originally introduced in 2013 under the Conservative administration.

Councillor David Westley

Conservative leader, Councillor David Westley, who represents Aughton and Downholland ward, said: "The way Labour allowed the recent changes to be slipped in under delegated authority without any debate was underhand and downright unfair.

"The Conservatives have always seen refuse and recycling collections as essential front-line services that are funded by council tax and not by the imposition of additional charges."

But council leader, Councillor Ian Moran, claimed the blue bin charge was the result of policies they had inherited from the previous Conservative administration and he said the council would introduce amendments at the next meeting.

He said: "I can only apologise for the length of time it has taken to sort out but we are sorting it out and we are listening to people's views. We will strive in future when changes are made wherever in the council that we will fully investigate all scenarios to make sure this sort of thing doesn't happen again."

However, Cllr. Westley said the Conservative's policy to hand out blue bins for free had not changed.

He added: "Yes, there is a mess at present due to the Labour administration's muddled thinking and lack of control i.e. letting decisions be taken under delegated authority without proper consideration of the consequence.

"I knew there was a great deal of discontent within the Labour group and that my motion would force the cabinet to address the problem. I will be leaving my motion on the agenda more as a back-stop or in case Labour renege on their commitment to sort the problem."

More strikes in store on Northern Rail

WORKERS at Northern Rail are to carry out three further days of strike action next week as part of the long-running dispute over the role of guards.

Members of the RMT union will walk out for 24 hours on Tuesday, June 19, Thursday, June 21 and Saturday, June 23.

The company has been under fire in recent weeks because of daily delays and cancellations to rail services following the introduction of new timetables

Northern Rail states on its website that "on weekday strikes, the majority of available trains typically operate between 7am and 7pm, with many last trains leaving before 7pm.

"During these hours, the overall number of trains running are significantly reduced, with around 40 per cent of the usual number of services in operation.

"These trains, and any replacement buses we run, are usually very busy.

"Therefore we ask our customers to carefully consider whether their journey is necessary."

Passengers are advised to check the Northern rail website for possible changes to services.

CCG accused of 'playing games with diabetics' lives'

Report by Kenny Parker

A DIABETIC has accused the West Lancs Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) of 'playing games with lives' by seeking public consultation on the use of a new device - which it's claimed will help people control the condition - rather than simply authorising its use.

And Steve Ashton, from Burscough, who has had type 1 diabetes for 33 years, also claimed the commissioners were trying to influence the consultation by inferring that the device, which requires a new sensor every two weeks, is 'high cost.'

The CCG is currently holding a public consultation on the new blood glucose reading device, marketed as FreeStyle Libre, which includes a sensor attached to the arm and continually monitors blood sugar levels. This does away with the finger-pricking process and, it's claimed, also helps diabetics take more control of their condition and their overall health.

It has been available on the NHS since November 1 of last year after being approved by the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE), but its use is subject to local CCG approval.

Elizabeth Perry from Aughton contacted the Champion to encourage others to support use of the device saying that it dramatically improved the quality of her life and would ultimately save the NHS money by improving people's health.

That view is shared by Steve Ashton, who says that the CCG should just have approved the device.

He said: "This consultation exercise means, even if it passes, it is unlikely to be available in West Lancs this year. This feels like a very short-sighted and cynical delaying tactic to stall its introduction.

"Even the key question on the CCG public consultation is biased by using the phrase 'high cost'. This wording is unacceptable and not objective and potentially influences the result. The device is cost-neutral if a diabetic currently tests more than eight times a day, as I and many other diabetics do."

Steve Ashton with his FreeStyle Libre blood sugar monitor.

A spokesperson for West Lancs CCG said they have followed a recommendation by the Lancashire Medicines Management Group which is currently not to recommend the use of FreeStyle Libre as the device is currently under a review process.

They are however, collaborating on the development of a policy for the use of the device.

The CCG added that the policy on which people are being asked to give their views includes an explanation of cost effectiveness. It says that, while in most cases the use of glucose monitoring devices to improve blood glucose control would not represent a cost-effective use of NHS resources, there are circumstances under which they are cost-effective.

The consultation can be viewed on NHS West Lancashire CCG's website, along with two other draft policies; the supply and funding of insulin pumps for patients with diabetes; and the management of back pain with spinal injections.

Opportunities to discuss these policies face-to-face can also be arranged by emailing mlcsu.haveyoursay@nhs.net or calling 01772 214244.

Comments on the policies should be submitted by no later than Friday, June 29.

Cancer information service mobile unit is coming to Ormskirk Market

A FREE cancer information and support service is coming to West Lancashire tomorrow (Thursday, June 14) with the message 'be safe in the sun this summer.

Macmillan Cancer Support's Mobile Information and Support Service will be visiting Ormskirk Market from 9am to 4pm with cancer information specialists on hand to answer any questions. The team encourages anyone with worries relating to cancer to stop by.

Now that summer is here, the team will also be providing specialist information about sun safety and skin cancer, although they will NOT be able to perform skin checks.

There are two main types of skin cancer, non melanoma and melanoma.

Macmillan Cancer Support's Mobile Information and Support Service will be visiting Ormskirk Market on Thursday, June 14 with specialists on hand to answer any questions relating to cancer

Around 136,000 cases of non melanoma skin cancer are diagnosed in the UK each year which makes it the most common type of cancer by far. It is unlikely to spread, very treatable and the earlier it is diagnosed the easier it is to treat.

Melanoma is the fifth most common cancer in the UK with around 15,400 cases diagnosed each year. It is more common in people with fairer or freckley skin. Around 27% of new cases occur in people aged 75 and over. Unlike other cancer types, malignant melanoma also occurs relatively often in people of younger ages.

Debbie Smith, from the mobile information team, said: "Most skin cancers are caused by exposure to the sun. This may be long-term exposure, or short periods of intense sun exposure and burning. Using sunbeds can also increase your risk. Our team will be on hand to answer questions about sun safety and for any other cancer-related queries."

For further information about Macmillan's mobile information service, and planned visits, go to www.macmillan.org.uk/mobileinfo

If you are unable to visit the unit but have questions about cancer, visit www.macmillan.org.uk or call Macmillan free on 0808 808 00 00 (Monday to Friday, 9am to 8pm).

Grace hopes to score with own T-shirt brand aimed at boosting the ranks of female footballers

Report by Henry James

A FOOTBALL-loving student from Skelmersdale has started her own T-shirt brand to empower other females to try the sport.

Grace Vella was inspired to create the brand, named MissKick, because she believes that despite recent increased coverage of women's sport in general and football in particular, it's still a struggle for girls playing a "predominantly male-orientated sport."

The 21-year-old, who plays for Wigan Athletic Ladies, said: "As a girl who has grown up playing football, I understand that I have to work that little bit harder to gain recognition or opportunities in football.

"Even in today's society, it's hard to be a girl who plays a predominantly male orientated sport. Men's football is such a huge part of our culture meaning it often leaves us girl players feeling pushed out or forgotten about.

"You can find yourself being attached to stereotypes that just do not represent you - you can be made to feel 'too strong' or 'too powerful', be labelled masculine or made to feel football isn't for you.

Grace Vella

"I want to change this for girls growing up today, so that they can access better opportunities, more support and feel accepted in the football world. That's why I have created MissKick."

The idea for MissKick came from Grace's own experiences of being a girl footballer.

She said: "Football has played, and still continues, to be a big part of my life. Some of my best memories come from playing football.

"I've travelled up and down the country, played abroad and made so many friends along the way. I wanted to create something that will empower current players and inspire new footballers so that they can have the same experiences I had.

"I have always felt that girl's football has come secondary to men's. Why was it that boys in the same position as me were getting more recognition and support? I know the frustration of feeling secondary will be something nearly all girls who play football at some point in their lives have had to deal with.

"I hope that by speaking out about my story it will inspire other girls to speak out and be part of the MissKick campaign to raise awareness and create better opportunities for the next generation of girl footballers."

For every T-shirt she sells, £1 will be given directly back to girl's grassroots football. Grace explained: "I want to raise money so that we can provide girls locally with new kit and training equipment, buy them the newest boots or fund their coaches to go on coaching courses.

"I'm hoping that by creating MissKick it will bring together all girls in football and remind them that they should be proud of who they are."

Grace is launching MissKick at the Skem Athletic Tournament for girls on June 23 and 24.

"They have stood the test of time because at their heart is the desire to find and recognise those women who inspire us."

Sky Sports presenter, Angela Powers interviewed the finalists at the lunch in the Midland Hotel in Manchester allowing them to share their own stories in their own words.

Hotter Shoes chief executive officer Sara Prowse

And the winners were announced by broadcaster Andy Crane; Patchwork Pate founder, Margaret Carter and actress Alice Barry of the TV comedy-drama, Shameless.

Sara Prowse commented: "It was an honour to win this award; I'm really passionate about developing Hotter and am proud to have been recognised for this."

6,000 indecent images of children found in raid on pensioner's home

A PENSIONER from Skelmersdale has been sentenced to a three-month tag, 12 -month community order and ordered to pay a £2,500 fine and sign the Sex Offenders' Register for five years after appearing in court charged with improper importation of an indecent/obscene article, and possession of more than 6,000 indecent images of children.

Douglas Charnock, of Greenway Close, who had pleaded guilty to the offence in April, was sentenced at Preston Crown Court in what is the first successful prosecution of its kind in Lancashire.

On May 4 last year officers from Lancashire Constabulary's Operation Nemesis attended Charnock's home after officials at Stansted Airport had intercepted a package addressed to the 77-year-old which contained a child sex doll.

Charnock was arrested at the scene and various computer equipment seized.

Subsequent enquiries revealed thousands of indecent images of children on various devices at Charnock's home.

PC Jess Spencer, of Operation Nemesis, said: "Charnock clearly has a depraved and unhealthy interest in underage girls and I welcome his conviction. We will continue to actively target offenders who seek to exploit the Internet for their own depraved purposes."

Beacon Park Golf Club Lady Captain Gill Walsh tries a bike for size at the cake and book sale event in aid of the NW Lancs and Lakes Blood Bikes charity. Looking on are fellow players and some of the Blood Bikes volunteers

Lady golfers chip in for North West Blood Bikes charity

MEMBERS of the Beacon Ladies Golf Club in Up Holland have raised £140 for the North West Blood Bikes charity.

The money was raised at a 'Booked and Baked' sale held at the club.

Angela Scott from the Beacon Ladies Section, said: "We had quite a few people attending the sale and are happy to announce we raised £140 for North West Blood Bakes.

"We hoped to have invited and encouraged more ladies to come and join us at golf.

"I even offered half-price green fees but unfortunately the ladies who attended were not in a position to take up this offer.

"North West Blood Bikes had five of their volunteers present and we were lucky enough to sit on one of their bikes.

"The North West Blood Bikes volunteers also invited all the children present to sit on the bike which went down very well."

Police commissioner calls for Government rethink on funding

New figures show county's force faces biggest shortfall in Home Office process

LANCASHIRE'S Police and Crime Commissioner, Clive Grunshaw has called again for the Government to review its decision-making as new figures show that Lancashire police are the biggest losers in a Home Office funding process.

The Home Office reserves a pot from the national policing budget to meet unexpected policing costs.

Data published this week showed that Lancashire's bid to cover the costs of policing the fracking site on Preston New Road, Little Plumpton faced the biggest shortfall.

The £1.4 million grant awarded left the police force to find the difference of £5.4 million from existing budgets. The next largest shortfall was £1.6 million for policing the Champions League final.

Clive Grunshaw said: "This is another hammer blow for people in Lancashire showing that the Government doesn't care about the impact of its decisions on our communities. In other parts of the country we see areas receiving a greater level of support.

"This decision was made in Westminster but residents in Lancashire are being left to foot the bill.

Lancashire's Police and Crime Commissioner Clive Grunshaw

'Unfair'

"Other external decisions, such as where to hold political conferences, international meetings or European cup finals have seen a much higher proportion of the costs covered, if not all of them.

"The Home Secretary Sajid Javid made the original decision to allow fracking in Lancashire.

"He now has a chance to ensure that our police aren't left short-changed as a result of their work keeping people safe at the site.

"I hope he now listens to Lancashire's pleas to review this unfair funding decision."

Alert to drivers after second deer-spotting incident in borough

Motorists warned of risk of collisions

Report by Kenny Parker

Dashcam footage of the deer running across the road in front of motorist Chris Ward.

MOTORISTS are being urged to be on their guard following another daytime sighting of deer in Skelmersdale.

Technical consultant Chris Ward was driving to work in Newburgh from his home in Skelmersdale at about 2pm on Wednesday, June 6 when he saw two deer run across Whalleys Road in Ashurst.

One of the deer then ran back across the road and Chris was able to capture it on his dashboard camera.

He said: "When I saw the two deer bounding across the road I slowed down. Then one of them ran back across my path."

Previously a deer caused a stir in downtown Skem on an early Sunday afternoon in May when it was spotted running through the estate at Yewdale.

And Highways England and The Deer Initiative joined forces to warn motorists about the risk of deer-vehicle collisions, as well as advice on what to do if you are involved in one, or see an injured deer on the roadside.

If you see an injured deer on the roadside or hit a deer while driving, you should pull over at the next safe place and call the police, who will deal with road safety issues.

If you hit a deer while driving, your priorities are to keep yourself and anyone with you safe. Park your car in the safest place with hazard lights on and consider using it to also warn other road users. Then call an ambulance, if human injuries warrant it, and the police.

It's best not to approach live deer as doing so may cause them to run across traffic causing another accident.

Senior principle environmental advisor at Highways England, Tony Sangwine, said: "Safety is our top priority and we want drivers to complete their journeys safely and without incident. We work closely with The Deer Initiative to warn motorists about the risks caused by deer, when they suddenly appear on the road."

Bank staff raise £3,000 for foodbank network

STAFF at the Co-operative Bank's administration and call centre operation in Skelmersdale raised more than £3,000 for food banks after holding a Glam Garden Party.

The event, organised by Bev Hayman, customer advocate at the Delf House site in Southway, Skelmersdale branch, was held at Beacon Park Golf Club and also involved colleagues from Stockport and Leek.

The money will be donated to the Trussell Trust foodbanks network in the three towns.

Delf House also recently served as a collection point for UHT milk and mens toiletries which will be delivered to Skelmersdale's Ecumenical Centre this month.

Bev said: "Our thanks go to Beacon Park Golf Club for hosting a truly special evening.

"This is a great example of how the Co-operative Bank works with local charities to make a difference in our local communities."

Trussell Trust foodbanks are based across the UK and provide three days nutritionally balanced emergency food and support to local people in crisis.

People are referred by professionals such as social workers, health visitors and school liaison officers, who are best placed in the community to assess the need.

Food banks also provide a listening ear and signposting to other agencies and charities that can help resolve the underlying cause of crisis.

School pupils treated to free half-term healthy breakfasts

SCHOOL pupils in Skelmersdale were able to enjoy free healthy breakfasts during the recent half-term holidays, as part of a wellbeing initiative organised by local volunteers.

The Healthy Holiday Breakfasts programme was staged at the town's library in Southway and youngsters were able to go along for a free breakfast and also take part in a range of creative activities.

The initiative was organised by volunteers, including Birch Green ward councillor, Claire Cooper, who helped raise the funds for the sessions through an International Women's Day Event organised by herself and Ashurst ward councillor, Yvonne Gagen in March.

Councillor Cooper said: "It's been fantastic to be able to support these children during the holidays and I'm really grateful to everyone who gave their support.

"It's been a real team event supported by the staff at the library, the Friends of Skelmersdale Library, the Junk Food Café from the Birchwood Centre and The Sewing Rooms, as well as my fellow councillors from across the borough.

"We are in the process of organising further free Healthy Holiday Breakfasts to take place during the longer summer holidays and have been talking to local schools to help deliver this.

"If anyone is interested in helping out with those, either by volunteering or providing food, they can get in touch with me via email at Cllr.Cooper@westlancs.gov.uk."

Firefighters called to Digmoor flat fire

TWO fire engines from Skelmersdale attended a kitchen fire in a flat at Banksbarn, Digmoor at just after noon on Wednesday, June 6.

Firefighters equipped with breathing apparatus used one hose reel and a ventilation unit to extinguish the fire.

One casualty was rescued by firefighters and suffered smoke inhalation.

Landmark achievement for 'star-struck' Chris!

Report by Kenny Parker

A KEEN photographer from Skelmersdale has succeeded in capturing an image of the Milky Way from Ashurst Beacon.

Internet administrator Chris Garman, who has a passion for fine art and fine art photography, set himself the challenge of getting a shot of the Milky Way from the local landmark, a task made more difficult due to light pollution from the surrounding urban areas of Liverpool and Manchester.

The 35-year-old said: "I like to take pictures of abandoned and derelict buildings with my friends but I also have a massive passion for astronomy and landscape work.

"Ashurst Beacon has always been a lovely place to photograph and I set myself the challenge of catching the Milky Way up there.

Surreal

"It's tricky because it's so light polluted up there but with the help of a light pollution filter for my camera and some astro processing techniques I have been able to capture it."

And Chris says he intends to try and get better shots later in the year when the nights are longer.

He added: "Strange to say I really loved being up there at 2am watching the stars and planets shine as the town slept below. I could see Jupiter, Saturn and Mars and it was quite surreal."

A portfolio of Chris's work can be seen at www.cgdigital.org and on Instagram at #cgdigitalartwork.

He is also exhibiting photos of nature taken in Skelmersdale at Liverpool Art Fair from Friday, July 6 to Sunday, September 2.

The Skem Men-Aces Team A with their runners-up trophy

Men-Aces shine at the double in competitive tournament

THE Skem Men-Aces entered two teams in the Bolton Disability Tournament over the weekend and both performed creditably against sides from across the UK.

The A side were pitched against teams including Wolves and hosts and favourites Bolton, while the B side faced Aston Villa and Wrexham among others.

The Men-Aces Team B did well to progress from the group stages and earn a place in the semi finals where they held Danby to a 0-0 draw before losing on penalties.

Meanwhile the Skem A Team played every game with desire and passion as they progressed through a tough group to reach the final against a top-quality Wrexham team who grabbed the winning goal in the dying moments.

Men-Aces managers, Carl and Mim Eaton, said: "It was a tense game with two powerful teams putting on a good display for the crowd. Skem A Team showed some great teamwork on a long day and we were pleased to bring back the runners-up trophy.

"The quality of football once again was absolutely outstanding and the friendship and respect shown on and off the pitch deserves to be applauded.

"These lads have done us proud. We are respected throughout the football disability circle and the Men-Aces are a credit to themselves, the club and the town."

The event was hosted by the Mayor and Mayoress of West Lancashire, Councillor Noel Delaney and Mrs Ann Stubbert, in the Mayor's Chamber followed by refreshments served in the Mayor's Parlour.

Representatives from voluntary, community and faith sector organisations in West Lancashire then praised impact of the work done by volunteers.

Greg Mitten, chief officer of West Lancs CVS along with Janice Howard, volunteering officer, thanked West Lancs Borough Council for hosting the ceremony and said having the Mayor and Mayoress presenting the awards to the volunteers had helped to make the evening "really special".

They added: "Thanks to the organisations who attended the evening, along with their volunteers and for saying wonderful things about the impact of volunteering in our borough.

"We would also like to thank Cath Thompson from the West Lancs Clinical Commissioning Group for attending on the night.

"And last, but certainly not least, thanks to all of the volunteers - not only those who attended on the night but all of the volunteers across West Lancashire - who work tirelessly, giving up their free time to try and change the lives of others.

"Well done to all of you and a huge well done to the volunteers who were presented with awards."

Sisters' homemade birthday card gets Royal stamp of approval!

WHEN young sisters Sophie and Hannah Malloy decided to send a birthday card to the Queen, they didn't really expect a reply.

But that's exactly what happened and the thoughtful youngsters from Ormskirk were over the moon after they got a letter in the post on behalf of Her Majesty thanking them for the gesture!

Sophie, four, and seven-year-old Hannah, wanted to wish the Queen a happy 92nd birthday so they sent a homemade card to Buckingham Palace.

And when they hadn't heard anything more than a month later they had almost forgotten about the card - until a response finally arrived from Annabel Whitehead, lady-in-waiting to the Queen.

The letter stated: "The Queen wishes me to thank you for you handmade card and the kind message you sent.

"In another year of special events for The Royal Family, The Queen is most grateful for your thoughtfulness in writing as you did at this time."

Mum, Gina, told the Champion: "As soon as we saw the letter we knew where it was from because it had a really posh envelope and stamp!

"It basically thanked them for the birthday card and said how the Queen was grateful for their thoughtfulness which was really nice for them to read."

A delighted Sophie and Hannah with the letter from Buckingham Palace

Lucie's dancing feat!

Youngster moves step closer to national talent prize and earns runner-up spot in prestigious awards

Report by Kenny Parker

A YOUNG dancer from Ormskirk has shown she knows all the right moves after winning a place in the finals of a national talent competition and finishing runner-up in a prestigious awards scheme.

Thirteen-year-old Lucie Deakin impressed judges in the area heats of TeenStar, the UK's biggest search for teenage and pre-teen singing and dance acts.

She will now go to London for the national fnal in July where she will compete in front of judges from the music, media and theatre industry for the chance to win prizes including a promotional video and photo shoot and an extensive publicity package including TV appearances.

The St Bede's Catholic High School pupil also finished runner-up in the senior section of the prestigious Janet Cram Awards, organised by the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing (ISTD), one of the world's leading dance examination boards.

Proud mum, Viv, who watched Lucie compete in the awards finals, also in London, said: "It was nerve-racking for me but it was all worth it in the end."

A member of the Hamilton Dance School in Maghull since the age of four, Lucie has already appeared on stage at Southport Little Theatre, the Echo Arena, the Liverpool Empire and the Epstein Theatre.

And although she is clearly not fazed by the big occasions, Viv says she always manages to keep her feet on the ground - but not literally, of course!

Lucie's range of dance includes tap, ballet, modern dance, lyrical and hip hop and her success is just reward for a lot of hard work, says Viv.

"She practices four nights a week and during the days on Saturdays and always gives it 110% effort."

Dancing teen Lucie Deakin

And Anneliese Hamilton-Stevens, who runs Hamilton School of Dance, said: "Myself and all the teachers of the school are incredibly proud of Lucie. The ISTD Janet Cram Awards are open to the best dancers in the country with almost 300 young dancers entering the senior section throughout the regional heats. To have been awarded runner-up at the final is just a wonderful achievement and is testament to the commitment to dance that Lucie has shown from an early age.

"Her hard work in class combined with the commitment from her teachers to help nurture her obvious talent has really started to pay off now. We are all delighted for her and are excited to see if her success continues at the TeenStar final in July."

MP joins call for halt to 'rip-off' overdraft fees

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancs MP Rosie Cooper has joined forces with the Consumers' Association, Which? and more than 80 fellow Parliamentarians in signing a letter asking for the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) to bring an end to what they called 'rip-off' overdraft fees.

Ms Cooper is concerned that residents in West Lancashire might still be paying excessive fees on unarranged overdrafts, some of which may still cost more than seven times more than a payday loan, according to new research by Which?

Despite scrutiny from the regulator, she feels not enough has been done to protect consumers from these sky-high fees.

She said: "Overdraft fees can be the first step in spiralling into a vicious debt circle which can lead people to resort to credit cards, payday lenders and worse. We need our banks to be responsible and support customers to climb out of debt not increase it."

Which? first raised the alarm over the fees in 2016 but new research shows the issue still exists.

The consumer champion compared the cost of borrowing £100 for 30 days in an unarranged overdraft across 16 high street banks with borrowing the same amount for the same length of time through a payday loan. Overall, 13 of the banks investigated charged more than a payday loan company, and considerably more so in several cases.

Rosie Cooper MP

The FCA previously capped payday loan charges, meaning that the cost of a loan in this scenario would be £24.

Among the findings of the Which? research were the following:

- Santander was almost 7.5 times higher and £155 more expensive, charging its customers a massive £179 over 30 days.
- TSB was more than 6.5 times more costly, charging £160.
- HSBC and First Direct were more than six times higher, at £150.
- RBS and Natwest are £144 and six times higher.

Now, Which? has written a letter to the FCA, along with the 84 MPs from all the main parties, demanding the authority takes urgent action to end this unfair practice by restricting unarranged overdraft charges to the same level as arranged overdrafts.

Gareth Shaw, Which? money expert, said: "It's alarming that the majority of banks are still allowed to charge more than payday loan firms through these rip-off overdraft fees. These extortionate fees can cost thousands of pounds a year, hitting those who can afford it the least.

"The regulator cannot drag its heels any longer. We must see urgent action to restrict these charges, bringing them into line with arranged overdraft fees to finally end this unfair practice."

Since Which? first called for banks to lower their unarranged overdraft fees, the Lloyds Banking Group has acted on its calls and scrapped unarranged overdraft fees, meaning it now has the lowest charges of investigated banks at £19.80 cheaper than a payday loan at just £4.20.

Meanwhile, Santander has also committed to Which?'s calls and will remove fees on unarranged overdrafts for its paid current accounts from July this year - although this will not apply to other Santander accounts.

Which? and the Parliamentarians are now calling for other banks to urgently follow suit.

OLD BED RECYCLING SERVICE

Public to have their say on reducing speed limits at accident black spots

LANCASHIRE County Council is to propose a reduction to the speed limit on sections of the A59 County Road and High Lane in Ormskirk following a number of serious accidents in recent years, including two fatalities.

A public consultation, due to begin in the next month, will propose a reduction from 40mph to 30mph. The public will also be asked about a similar proposal to reduce the speed limit on the A570 Southport Road which intersects County Road at the Five Ways junction.

Councillor Nikki Hennessy is urging residents to take part in public consultations about reducing speed limits on County Road/High Lane and Southport Road in Ormskirk.

In April a motorcyclist was killed on County Road near to the junction with Yew Tree Road, following a collision with a Honda Civic.

That followed another fatal collision at the nearby junction with Green Lane in December.

There have been numerous crashes at the Fiveways junction over the year.

Now Labour's county council representative for Ormskirk, Councillor Nikki Hennessy is urging local residents to make sure they participate in the consultation.

Speaking about the stretch of County Road and High Lane, she said: "What has been happening along this road has been tragic. But thanks to the local community we have been able to highlight their concerns with the county council and police to reduce the risks along the road.

"Although speed is not the only factor, reducing speeds will give drivers more time to react and evidence shows that it can hopefully reduce the extent of injuries.

"I would urge members of the public to respond to this consultation and help us to help you."

And with regards to the Five Ways junction and Southport Road, Cllr. Hennessy, who is also a West Lancs borough councillor for Knowsley Ward, added: "We consulted local people on the traffic flow of the junction 18 months ago and reducing the speed of vehicles around the junction, I believe, can only be a good thing. We will, however, remain vigilant and any steps to make Ormskirk a safer place will be considered."

A spokesman for Lancashire County Council said: "We met with the police in January following an incident in December to consider all the available evidence about safety on County Road, including investigations of previous incidents, our own recent monitoring.

"In consideration of this we now feel it is appropriate to consider reducing the speed limit to 30mph on sections of County Road/High Lane (A59) and Southport Road (A570) north of the Five Ways junction, and will be holding a public consultation on this proposal shortly."

Buying a first-class ticket doesn't get you first-class fare on today's trains

I AGREE with Jim Sharpe (One Man & His Dog, Champion, May 30) about the sad decline of railway catering.

Thirty years ago I was a regular on that Liverpool Street to Norwich line. From their tiny, rocking galley, the restaurant car crew would cook and serve a proper hot meal.

Passengers going to Colchester got three courses, drinks and coffee, all within the 45-minute journey. They didn't even need a first-class ticket, just to pay a tenner or so for the meal.

I found this so impressive that I pitched the idea of a TV documentary series to the BBC, featuring the restaurant car crew and various other professional travellers I had met.

"No," said the BBC, "nobody wants to watch that sort of thing." Now the TV schedules are stuffed with series about airlines, airports, railways, stations, cruise liners etc.

But today you need a first-class ticket to get at-seat catering. And what do you get? On an early evening Virgin train to Glasgow last week, 'dinner' was a small rice salad in a cardboard box, a packet of crisps, a banana and a biscuit.

Even though I had a really cheap, cut-price ticket, I did not think this was much of a bargain. What should have been a treat was just a disappointment.

Adrian Tayler, Skelmersdale

They should keep the guards but get rid of the drivers!

I WHOLLY agree with the rail staff demands that guards should not be removed from trains and support the strikes to see this doesn't happen.

They do an essential job in aiding passengers and deterring bad behaviour.

Given the current technology and the progress in driver-less car development we should actually be getting rid of the drivers.

Trains run on tracks not roads so no steering is required and the argument that people wouldn't travel on such transport is spurious. Anyone wanting to hack into a train system could override the current driver system as just easily as a driver-less system.

Keep the guards, get rid of the drivers.

Roderick Green,
Back Lane, Burscough

Rail chaos could cost me my job

EVERYONE knows, as it's national news, the trains are currently a nightmare. I have written to my MP a number of times to help spread the message at Parliament. No response.

I leave work at 5pm and hours later am still waiting for my train from Manchester to Burscough, thanks to 'Northern Failure'!

Oh, by the way, I have a wife and two kids waiting for me that I can't see because of public transport, or the lack of it. So don't blame me for driving!

If I don't lose my job it will be amazing.

M.W., by email

Residents have a duty to attend CCG meetings

RON Cooper (Champion Letters, June 6) made very valid points expressing concerns about the private contracting and subcontracting of Virgin Care since the West Lancs Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) gave them the contract to take over Hants Lane, the walk-in centres and all out-of-hours GP services.

The only reason these services are still acting so well for our community is that original NHS staff who know what they are doing are still employed there.

I have written before and raised questions of what happens if their contract is not renewed, as happened in Surrey when Virgin Care then sued the authority for a significant sum.

That is NOT about caring.

This is a company that appears genuinely to care and support the NHS, but as Mr Cooper says, it is based in an offshore tax haven and the end result is to cater for its shareholders not to care for the sick and needy and support our wonderful NHS born in 1948 for all our citizens.

Mr Cooper is quite right. It is up to residents to attend these CCG meetings.

Judy Ingman, Town Green

Skem's unsightly grass verges are a disgrace and an accident waiting to happen

YET another let-down for Skelmersdale.

The state and condition of the grass areas within the town are an utter disgrace.

In the Ashurst area alone grass and weeds are 3ft high in places. Not only is this an unsightly mess, it makes it very difficult to see clearly when approaching roundabouts.

The council needs to get its act together. How are the people of the town supposed to have a pride in where they live when the council cannot be bothered.

This is a very dangerous situation re: the safety to the public.

I contacted the council more than a week ago and I'm still waiting for a response.

Paul Barker, Skelmersdale

This sorry cyclist should have known better . . .

ON Saturday night (June 9) I was cycling towards St Helens Road in a hurry so when the traffic lights turned red, I shot across regardless.

This forced a motorist going past the green light to screech to a halt and he or she angrily blew the horn, thus saving both of us from a serious accident.

What I did was stupid, dangerous and illegal. I can hardly believe what I did. I have no excuse. I'm a man of mature age and I've always been a staunch advocate of cyclists' rights.

I just hope that the driver reads this and may accept my true apologies for my behaviour.

Let this be a warning that even 'sensible' and 'experienced' road users can do idiotic things on the spur of the moment. I can hopefully say that I will never do such a thing again. I've learned my lesson.

Apologetic cyclist, details supplied

Blue boxes are no longer fit for purpose

ONE only has to look back to January to see that gale force winds are not just of interest to those listening to the shipping forecast.

And as we get stronger winds coming inland more frequently, one only has to look along Wigan Road, Ormskirk during the winter months!

Wigan Road is in Councillor Adrian Owens' ward by the way, and on collection day you can see the blue plastic boxes and their contents, of which a hell of a lot are pizza boxes, being blown all over the place. Most of the blue boxes lost their lids ages ago,

And this, of course, is happening all over the borough.

So whatever Cllr. Owens charges about the charges, I would suggest that the plastic boxes themselves are no longer fit for purpose and a sturdy bin is the sensible answer.

And let's not forget people are getting more and more cardboard boxes nowadays from their Amazon deliveries etc.

It's good to see recycling focusing the mind.

H. Pennington, by email

Specsavers' staff couldn't have been more helpful and understanding

I WISH to send a very big thank-you and commendation to Specsavers in Ormskirk for their fantastic approach and patience when my daughter attended recently.

She needed to get her eyes tested and after seeing an article in the Champion about this particular branch raising staff awareness around autism through training, I decided to take her there.

My daughter is terrified of any kind of medical setting and of new experiences. However the staff could not have been more understanding, patient and helpful when dealing with us. Nothing was too much trouble and they helped to alleviate the fear my daughter was experiencing.

What may seem like a simple procedure to most can be very overwhelming and distressing to someone with autism. I wish more shops and services would recognise that it only takes a few adjustments, patience and an understanding approach to make all the difference.

Thank you and well done Specsavers Ormskirk!

Free courses available at county's libraries

LANCASHIRE County Council has announced that a range of free courses on everything from computer coding and digital skills, to history and languages, are available for adults and families at the county's libraries.

Both short 'taster' sessions and longer courses are on offer for anyone looking to pick up a new skill or develop their knowledge.

They are being made available thanks to close collaboration between the county council's library service and Lancashire Adult Learning, an independent organisation which aims to provide learning opportunities for all adults across the region.

Courses for adults include digital skills, art, skills for work, health and safety, languages, healthy eating, wellbeing, history and heritage.

Other courses that are offered for families include Lego robotics, coding and pre-school play and learn.

County Councillor Peter Buckley, Lancashire's cabinet member for community and cultural services, said: "We've got a great range of free courses available for those looking to take a different career path, expand their skillset, or simply pick up a new hobby or activity to enjoy with their family.

"Our courses are aimed at meeting all sorts of needs, whether you want to pick up a few key phrases for a holiday, study for a future or current job, or get involved in a new social activity. That is why we are offering a varied programme of courses across the Lancashire community to cater to all tastes and help adults and families achieve their goals.

"I'd urge people to check out what's available and take the opportunity to enrol on a free course."

Membership of Lancashire libraries is free and there are no age restrictions. For more information, go to www.lancashire.gov.uk/libraries or call 0300 123 6703. To find out more about Lancashire Adult Learning and the courses available visit http://bit.ly/lancslearning

The Consolette Choir's fundraising debut performance at St Mark's Church, Scarisbrick

Choir's debut concert raises £600 for church

MEMBERS of a recently-formed choir have raised £600 for a West Lancs church with their first public performance.

The Consolette Choir, which meets every Tuesday from 7.30 to 9.30pm at Burscough's Stanley Club, was set up in September last year by pianist and music teacher, Joanne Fairclough.

They held their first public performance at St Mark's Church, Scarisbrick which included renditions of a variety of popular and folk songs with money from ticket sales to go towards a new annexe for the church.

The concert also featured a version of the Beatles song, Carry That Weight, specially adapted for the choir by Joanne who was delighted with the amount raised. She said: "We all really enjoyed the evening and are now looking forward to our next performance."

New members would be welcome to join the choir. Anyone requiring information can contact Joanne on 07791 461 739.

Charity bags £4,000 funding boost

WEST Lancs-based charity Sporting Challenge has received £4,000 from the Tesco Bags of Help Scheme following a public vote.

Funding raised by the carrier bag charge at Tesco stores is used for grants to improve local parks, hold community events, support sports groups and more.

Under the scheme customers at Tesco scores who buy a carrier bag receive a token and are then invited to place it into one of three containers representing local good causes with the one receiving the most tokens being awarded the funds.

Sporting Challenge, which provides sporting activities for people with learning disabilities in West Lancashire, was the winner at the Tesco store in Burscough earlier this year.

The charity's activities organiser, Edward McCarthy, said: "On behalf of Sporting Challenge I wish to thank the Tesco Bags of Help Scheme and Groundwork UK who manage the scheme for this fantastic funding award. It will make a huge difference and help us fund more sessions."

The recently-inducted Urgent Care Practitioners who will provide a new way of responding to emergency calls.

Ambulance service pilots treatment-at-home scheme

Report by Kenny Parker

THE North West Ambulance Service (NWAS) is piloting a new way of responding to 999 calls which will see some patients treated in their homes rather than being taken to hospital.

The Urgent Care Practitioners are nurses and paramedics who respond to patients calling the emergency number but don't need an ambulance and a trip to hospital.

With vehicles equipped to treat people on scene, the Urgent Care Practitioners will do all they can to ensure the patient has the help they need, referring on to other local health services if required.

The service says this is positive for patients, who will be avoiding unnecessary trips to A&E, and it will help to keep emergency ambulances free to respond quickly to life-threatening incidents.

The Urgent Care Practitioners will also spend some of their time working within the control centre. In this part of the role, if it is safe to do so, they will use their clinical expertise to give patients care and advice over the telephone or make onward referrals.

David Ratcliffe, medical director at NWAS, said: "We are continuously developing our services to make sure we're providing the best care for patients.

Opportunity

"A large proportion of the 999 calls we receive are for patients who do need support but don't necessarily need an emergency ambulance to take them to hospital. It is these patients who the Urgent Care Practitioners will respond to.

"This pilot is an exciting opportunity to bring new nursing skills to our frontline workforce and use existing paramedic expertise to focus on helping people as close to home as possible. We'll work closely with other health services in the local area to make sure patients get the right care for their needs, at the right time and in the right place."

Jason Mulrooney, a nurse taking on the new Urgent Care Practitioner role, said: "With our existing skills and experience, and the additional training we've been given, we're perfectly placed to give patients the care and support they need. We see ourselves as trailblazers, being one of the few ambulance services in the UK to provide such a service."

The six-month pilot is part of the NWAS Transforming Patient Care programme, which incorporates a number of service developments and initiatives focused on ensuring patients get the right care, at the right time, in the right place every time.

The new chair of Lancashire County Council Anne Cheetham and Police and Crime Commissioner Clive Grunshaw (right) joined Lancashire Volunteer Partnership to pay tribute to the county's volunteers.

Police chief pays tribute to support of county's volunteers

LANCASHIRE'S Police and Crime Commissioner, Clive Grunshaw has thanked volunteers for all the work they do across the county, during an event celebrating National Volunteers Week (June 1 to 7).

Held by the Lancashire Volunteer Partnership at Lancashire Constabulary's headquarters in Hutton, the 'afternoon tea' saw more than 70 volunteers receive certificates of thanks for the work they do to support public services in Lancashire.

Mr Grunshaw was one of the founding members of the Lancashire Volunteer Partnership when it was set up in 2016, along with Lancashire Constabulary, Lancashire County Council and other public sector organisations that are supported by the crucial work that volunteers do.

The partnership brings a wide range of different volunteering opportunities into one place and means people that give up their time to volunteer have access to support that helps both themselves and the organisations that they volunteer for to get the maximum benefit.

Clive Grunshaw, said: "Volunteers provide vital support across our communities and therefore it's important to recognise and celebrate the positive impact they have across Lancashire.

"This event was a great opportunity to thank some of those volunteers that are making a real difference across the county and to recognise the ongoing work being done by the Lancashire Volunteer Partnership.

Wonderful

"Since we were successful in bidding for transformational funding to deliver a joined-up approach for public sector volunteering opportunities, the partnership has gone from strength to strength, helping those who want to give up their time and make a real difference for the benefit of all. I am looking to build on this work later this year by joining together and supporting Lancashire's social action groups."

Chief inspector Ian Sewart, programme manager at Lancashire Volunteer Partnership, added: "Today, as part of National Volunteering Week, is a great opportunity to thank all of our wonderful volunteers and the support they provide to public services throughout Lancashire.

"It also marks two years since the formation of the Lancashire Volunteer Partnership, made up of different public services to provide opportunities for people to volunteer.

"Today will see volunteers from across Lancashire who contribute in all manner of different ways, from supporting someone who is isolated and vulnerable all the way through to cadet leaders and library support, come together.

"They all help to make Lancashire a better place and we are extremely proud and thankful for the support they provide, it is a pleasure to recognise their contribution at this event."

To find out more about the opportunities available and apply to become a volunteer, visit http://lancsvp.org.uk.

Care home lays on special tea party to celebrate Margaret's 100th birthday

STAFF at a West Lancs care home laid on an afternoon tea party to celebrate a very special occasion for a long-term resident.

As well as receiving her much-anticipated letter of congratulations from the Queen, great-grandmother Lillian Margaret Pruden - known as Margaret - celebrated her 100th birthday at the Hillcroft Care Home in Aughton, followed by a dinner out with her family.

Originally from Tarleton, Margaret and her late husband of 40 years, Albert, lived in many places including Liverpool before settling in Long Lane, Aughton.

The couple had six children and Margaret worked at the Ford factory in Halewood for 20 years, while Albert, who passed away in 1987, was a JCB driver in the building trade.

Hillcroft manager, Margaret Sutcliffe, said: "It was a pleasure and an honour to be involved in such a special occasion. We would like to thank Margaret and her family for their involvement and support in making it a special day for such a lovely lady."

Right: Margaret Pruden and staff at Hillcroft Care Home who organised a special party to celebrate her 100th birthday.

Former Linnets Trophy hero lands manager's job at League Two club

Report by Neil Leatherbarrow

A FORMER Burscough FC player has been appointed manager of League Two side, Exeter City.

Matt Taylor takes over at the Devon club - who narrowly missed out on promotion to League One after losing in the play-off final at Wembley to Coventry City last month - from the Football League's longest-serving manager Paul Tisdale who had held the post for 12 years.

The 36-year-old from Parbold was the goalkeeper in Burscough's FA Trophy winning side in 2003.

Having been on the books of Preston North End and Everton as a youngster, Taylor joined the Linnets after a spell with Burscough Richmond, starting in the reserves before establishing himself as first choice keeper. And, along with his brother Joe who partnered player-manager Shaun Teale at centre-back, he went on to be a key member of the trophy-winning side.

When Teale left in the summer of 2003, Matt went to Sheffield Hallam University, while playing in goal for Matlock, Halifax Town and Guiseley, then to Bath University to take a masters degree.

At Bath, he met Paul Tisdale who was then manager of Team Bath who reached the first round of the FA Cup, and got to play in his preferred position at centre-half.

When Tisdale took over as manager of Exeter City, Matt soon joined him at the then Conference Premier League outfit and became a fans' favourite, twice winning the supporters' player-of-the-year award as they won promotion back into the Football League firstly in League Two and then going up to League One.

Former Burscough FC player Matt Taylor who has been appointed manager of Exeter City.

After 147 appearances for the Grecians, Matt moved to Charlton Athletic in 2011, where manager Chris Powell made him vice-captain. This was followed by spells at Bradford City, Colchester, Cheltenham and Newport County before Paul Tisdale came calling again and invited him to join his coaching team.

And when Tisdale announced he was leaving Exeter to join MK Dons, Matt was interviewed for the manager's post and appointed this month.

He said: "I have a coaching qualification but that is a bit of paper. Nothing can prepare you for management. I am under no illusions as to how difficult it will be but I am going to go for it and enjoy it."

Is it one rule for smokers and another for other litter louts?

DID you pick up on the story about comedian Johnny Vegas being fined £150 for chucking his spent cigarette end down a drain in Doncaster and the subsequent furore because he was a little miffed about it?

Now Johnny Vegas is one of the very few of the current crop of stand-up comics that I actually find funny, but I would have to reluctantly agree that this is not the best way of disposing of a cigarette butt. However, £150 does seem a tad exorbitant.

These days you can dangerously - and perhaps fatally - exceed the speed limit in your car for less than that, or attack any stranger in the street you happen not to like for that matter. And in one newspaper letter I noted that we smokers are "dirty, lazy litterbugs."

Well several other groups, who seem always to escape the long arm of the local law, could just as well be called the same thing, but rarely are.

If some council official were to start slapping £150 fines on those filthy creatures who spit in the street (and occasionally on public transport as well); or those 'revellers' (newspeak for drunken oafs) who smash glasses and bottles on streets and in parks, which can badly maim animals and could certainly blind any child who chanced to fall on the shards, then I would have less sympathy for Johnny Vegas.

But they don't.

And I get very hot under the collar when I see the ludicrously low fines imposed for cruelty to animals. Oh well, it's just a dog, or horse.

The very councils who impose these fines for 'littering' - and I'm by no means certain that a fag end down a drain really falls into that category - very often don't make that much effort to help would-be non-litterers to help themselves.

I reckon there is a good example of this near to where I live. A large organisation has for some years allowed visitors (and their dogs) to meander round their really rather beautiful grounds. One of the very few rules they very reasonably apply is that dog owners must pick up and take away any dirty doings.

Now my local council has a good track record so far as places to deposit all kinds of litter, including doggy bags, goes. But I have been asking councillors for years why they cannot site a bin at the entrance to this walk, so making it that much more easy for us dog walkers to comply. From memory, I reckon the nearest is at least a quarter of a mile away.

I have pointed out a bin there would be well placed because it is also on a route used by children walking to school. But I've been told that there are only a certain number of waste bins available. And though I can show councillors one road where there are two bins within yards of each other, apparently this doesn't help - because they are in different wards! I would have thought that there must be a way around this, but there remains no bin at the site I suggested and two where one really would suffice.

Mind you, again credit where credit is due. The same council has recently installed new, large and very yellow litter bins in its parks. And they really are good. Large enough not to be full to overflowing every five minutes, and bright yellow enough so no-one could claim they didn't know where they are.

But back to Johnny Vegas and his £150 fine. I very much doubt that Mr Vegas will have a pressing problem in getting the cash together to pay up, but the same might not be true for a pensioner who, wrongly it's true, dropped his or her fag-end down a drain rather than stuff it into a pocket or shopping bag to be disposed of at home.

Particularly when it is more than likely that if he or she does this supposedly environmentally friendly thing, it ends up in landfill anyway.

Pub regulars' fundraising raffle is just the ticket for cancer centre

BIG-hearted tipplers at a West Lancs hostelry have helped to raise £600 for a specialist cancer treatment centre.

The bulk of the cash was collected through a raffle organised by Robert Sumner, a regular at the Heatons Bridge pub in Scarisbrick.

The raffle has become an annual event and Robert says this year saw a terrific response by customers at the pub buying tickets for the chance to win prizes generously donated by local businesses.

On behalf of the charity he offered thanks to those who bought tickets or helped him to sell them, plus businesses who have contributed prizes including Kart World, Whites Motors, Church Garage and Rushdens Nursery.

Care trust's 'it's good to talk' message to people with diabetes

WITH Diabetes Week (June 11 to 17) this year coinciding with Men's Health Week, Lancashire Care NHS Foundation Trust's Diabetes Services team are calling on people with the condition, particularly men, to talk about it and learn how best to manage it.

Around 700 people are diagnosed with diabetes a day in the UK and Lancashire Care's diabetes services are encouraging people with the condition to have conversations about the condition with their doctors, friends and families.

People with the condition in Lancashire can also access a national programme called DESMOND that provides support to people living with type 2 diabetes. There is an estimated 4.5 million people living with diabetes in the UK with around 1.1 million people who have the condition but have not been diagnosed.

Pam Tetlow from the Diabetes Service at Lancashire Care NHS Foundation Trust, said: "Talking about diabetes can be tricky, awkward, difficult, funny and everything in between. It can be all of those things for people, from telling someone you've just met about your diabetes, to trying to explain diet changes to relatives or avoiding that conversation with your doctor.

Pam Tetlow from the Diabetes Service at Lancashire Care NHS Foundation Trust

"This Diabetes Week, we want to make it easier for you to have those conversations, with your doctor, your friends and family, and people you've just met. We want to get you talking.

"Ensuring that members of the public living with diabetes know how to successfully manage their condition is our priority and utilising the DESMOND programme ensures that we can provide that support and advice. It's important that anyone living with the condition knows there is free and helpful support out there so if you need advice about any of the above or need to talk to someone, contact the local team responsible for your care."

DESMOND is open to people with type 2 diabetes however long they have had a diagnosis. You can self-refer or be referred by health professionals. Attending a DESMOND session will help someone to understand how food, activity and medication affect their diabetes control, what the long term risks of living with type 2 diabetes are and how an individual might reduce these risks.

Trained

A team of nurses, dietitians, podiatrists and educator support workers from the Diabetes Service team at Lancashire Care NHS Foundation Trust are trained to deliver DESMOND to small groups of people with type 2 diabetes. Sessions are free and attendees are welcome to take along a partner, family member or friend.

DESMOND is run in towns and cities throughout the UK. To find out more, contact the DESMOND office on 01772 777620 or email desmond@lancashire-care.nhs.uk. Alternatively, speak to your GP, practice nurse or health care professional.

For general advice on any form of diabetes, call the Diabetes UK Helpline on 0345 123 2399 or visit www.diabetes.org.uk.

Public's views invited on proposed changes to county's children and family wellbeing service

LANCASHIRE County Council is inviting the public and partner organisations to share their views on proposals to change the way its children and family wellbeing service is delivered.

The proposal is to reduce the number of buildings used to deliver the service and to work within the community in a more flexible way.

The budget for the service has been cut by £1.2m following a cabinet decision in January and as a result it needs to reduce the number of buildings it uses from 76 to 57.

The children and family wellbeing service supports children, young people, parents and families to stay healthy and well and less likely to need to use social care and health services.

Louise Taylor, Lancashire's executive director of adult services, health and wellbeing, said: "We remain committed to providing the best services we can to the people of Lancashire, particularly those in greatest need of our support and the children and family wellbeing service is a key part of our plans.

"We'll continue to provide our service in a flexible way depending on the type of support people need and deliver sessions at buildings and locations which best suit the children and families we work with.

Louise Taylor, executive director of adult services, health and wellbeing

"The types of issues our key workers get involved with include working with families to help improve young people's attendance at school or college, ensuring young people get help to tackle substance misuse, and helping children to be more physically active.

"If approved, the proposal would mean we could provide the service from fewer buildings while maintaining the same number of key workers and front-line staff to work with children, young people and families.

"The county council's financial position remains extremely challenging. However, it's vital that people who use the service and partner organisations are given the opportunity to have their say. All views will be considered by the cabinet before it makes its final decision about the proposals in October."

The proposal also includes commissioning support for 12 to 19 year-olds through the voluntary, community and faith sector to support delivery of services to young people across Lancashire.

The eight-week consultation began on Wednesday, June 6 and runs until Friday, August 3.

To share your views about the proposals, visit www.lancashire.gov.uk/haveyoursay or complete a written questionnaire available from local children and family wellbeing centres.

The county council will also hold focus groups, run by an independent facilitator, where the people it supports can share their views.

Blow the whistle on domestic abuse during the World Cup

WITH the 2018 Football World Cup due to start on Thursday (June 14), West Lancashire Borough Council is urging victims of domestic abuse not to suffer in silence.

According to research by Lancaster University into Lancashire Constabulary figures from the 2002, 2006 and 2010 World Cups, incidents of domestic abuse rose by 38% in the county when the England national team lost a match.

They also increased by 26 per cent when the England national team played and won or drew, compared with days when there was no England match.

The research also found there was a carry-over effect, with incidents of abuse 11% higher the day after an England match. The day of the week a game took place was taken into account when coming up with these figures.

Domestic abuse can take many forms, including physical abuse, sexual abuse, coercive and controlling behaviour, financial abuse and emotional or psychological abuse. Anyone who is forced to alter their behaviour because they are frightened of their partner's reaction is being abused. Abuse can happen at any stage of a relationship and is very rarely a 'one-off'.

Men can also be the victims of domestic abuse. Between June 2016 and May 2017 in 20% of domestic abuse-related crimes in West Lancashire the victim was male.

The council is using some of the resources supplied by the office of the Police and Crime Commissioner to raise awareness of domestic abuse during the World Cup and also supports the White Ribbon Campaign, an international initiative aimed at ensuring men take more responsibility for reducing the level of violence against women.

Councillor Kevin Wright, West Lancs Council's portfolio holder for health and community safety, said: "Domestic abuse is a crime and the research from Lancaster University suggest that the Football World Cup is a time where this crime can be more common.

Sympathetic

"We want victims to know that they are not alone and if they approach those services that can help them their complaints will be handled with care by people sympathetic to what they are going through."

The Liberty Centre in Ormskirk helps victims in a number of ways. These include a free confidential 24-hour advice and information line number 0808 100 3062; practical and emotional support for all victims of domestic abuse; confidential counselling; legal advice and the Women's Refuge for short-term accommodation.

Gwen Bleasdale, chief executive of the Liberty Centre, said: "We want anyone living in fear to come forward, including men. We will listen, understand and support anyone who is a victim or is just making an enquiry.

"There are many reasons why women may find it difficult to see their situation as abusive or even leave an abusive relationship.

"A woman may not know where to go or even believe it is better to stay for the sake of her children. If victims don't know what to do they can phone us and get some advice."

Help and support is also available through Lancashire Victims Service by calling 0300 323 0085.

Big improvement in labelling of allergens by food businesses

...but beware of claims for 'wellness' products

FOOD businesses in the county have 'upped their game' when selling food containing allergens (substances causing an allergic reaction) according to Lancashire County Council's Trading Standards Service.

However, the consumer protection service is warning of a growing risk from so-called wellness foods and supplements.

Over the past three years the percentage of businesses failing tests for ingredients containing allergens which hadn't been declared on menus has dropped from 40% to 12.5%.

Trading Standards is working closely with businesses to make sure they understand the serious implications of serving food containing undeclared allergens, and bring any which fail sample tests into line.

The figures have been highlighted during Food Standards Agency's national Food Safety Week (June 10-16).

Rachel Wilcock, the service's principal officer for food, works to inspect and advise businesses to ensure the food on our plates is safe, and contains only what the label or menu says it does. She said: "We carry out sample tests on a quarterly basis to check how well food businesses are complying with their obligations around allergens, and identify those where we need to take further action.

Rachel Wilcock, principal officer for food at the county council's Trading Standards

"The good news is that over the last three years we've seen a real improvement in the proportion of businesses passing, and while we don't want any failures at all, I hope this gives people confidence that their food has become safer in this respect.

"We're working hard to bring that failure rate as close to zero as possible, and are building on what we're already doing by producing a new information and training pack which we'll be rolling out to businesses later this year."

At the same time, the trading standards service says an emerging area of concern is the growth in foods and supplements produced as part of the 'wellness' industry, which are marketed with claims about their potential to improve our health.

Rachel added: "We are now seeing an increase in wellness-related foods. Unfortunately, sample tests are finding that some of these products don't contain what the label says; contain things which haven't been tested and passed as safe for human consumption; or extra ingredients which are not on the label.

"There could be all sorts of potential health consequences to consuming untested ingredients, as well as wider impacts for society and individuals. In the case of fitness supplements for example, an unlisted ingredient could lead an athlete to fail a dope test.

"Wellness foods and supplements is an area of the industry we're focusing on more and more. As with any product or service you buy, our advice is always to be alert to any special claims being made about them and question whether you're buying from a reputable source. If any claim sounds too good to be true, then it probably is."

Our Wonderful World to be theme of village fair

Report by Kenny Parker

OUR Wonderful World is the theme for this year's Newburgh Fair on Saturday, June 23 which will start with a procession through the village at noon.

Children are busy making costumes in special workshops to interpret the theme which has been prompted by the Blue Planet TV series.

Fiona Casey, chairwoman of the Newburgh Fair Association, said: "Visitors to the fair can expect decorated floats with children in costumes representing all manner of beasties. The over-sevens in the procession will also wear T-shirts with undersea images designed by 10-year old Jack Williams in a competition run by Newburgh CE Primary School."

The theme will also be picked up in a craft fair with competitions for Wonderful World photos, drawings, paintings and handmade items.

Fiona added: "We always try to refresh the fair with new features, as well as preserving old favourites. New this year will be the talented Red Admiral Music Academy Band from Mawdesley who will lead the procession and perform in the arena; and circus workshops by Circus Sensible to entertain children and adults alike."

The fair will also feature the annual Rose Queen crowning, the Newburgh Morris dancers and an energetic display of clog dancing.

And the much-loved village dog show is being revived, while contestants will be putting their strength to the test in the tug-of-war challenge.

During the week leading up to the fair the programme includes a Lancashire Folk Night offering songs, stories and silliness from the 'Bolton Bullfrog', Bernard Wrigley, accompanied by Newburgh folksinger Mark Dowding.

The full programme for the fair week is:

Sunday, June 17, 10.30am - Family Service with Rev David Towler.

Tuesday, June 19, 7pm - Douglas Valley Lions Club Bingo.

Wednesday, June 20, 7.30pm - Folk Night with Bernard Wrigley and Mark Dowding;.

Thursday, June 21, 7.30pm- PTA Ladies Night.

Friday, June 22, 7pm - Community Quiz Night.

Then on Saturday the fair will run from noon to 4.30pm.

All events will be staged in a marquee on the field off Newburgh School in Back Lane.

Historic St Cuthbert's Church, Halsall will be open to visitors on Halsall Heritage Weekend.

History and fun on offer at Halsall Heritage Weekend

ST CUTHBERT'S Church, Halsall, will be hosting guided tours as part of a heritage weekend between 2 and 5pm on Saturday and Sunday, June 16 and 17.

Photos of village festivals from the past, including Rose Queens, garden parties, parades and outings, will be on display, along with other historical documents related to the church which dates back to the 14th century.

Visitors will also have the opportunity to see the refurbished clock tower and bell tower and those able to climb the steps of the tower will have an opportunity to try bell ringing. Children will be encouraged to have a go too.

The open weekend has been organised to run alongside the Halsall Scarecrow Treasure Trail taking place on the same days and times.

Entrants in the trail will go around the village centre seeking answers to questions all about the scarecrows. Entry forms, priced £3, are available from St Cuthbert's Church during the weekend.

All entries, completed or not, will be entered into a prize draw to win family-friendly prizes. Proceeds will go to Halsall Proud & Tidy Group, whose volunteers help to keep the village looking attractive.

For further information visit the Facebook pages Halsall Heritage Weekend and Halsall Scarecrow Festival.

One of country's best loved pianists will be performing in village

PARBOLD Douglas Music is delighted to present international pianist, Martin Roscoe performing in the Auditorium in the Village Hall on Saturday, June 23 at 7.45 p.m.

With an extraordinary career spanning over four decades, Martin Roscoe from the Lake District is one of the UK's best loved pianists and is renowned for his versatility at the keyboard.

With a repertoire of over 100 concertos performed or recorded, Martin works regularly with many of the UK's leading orchestras, such as the BBC Philharmonic and the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra.

A limited number of stand-by tickets are always available at the Box Office on the evening of the concert.

However, to ensure availability, book or order tickets by visiting www.parbolddouglasmusic.org email them on tickets@parbolddouglasmusic.org or telephone: 01257 498452 (booking answerphone). Concert tickets are £18 for adults and £5 for young persons and students.

Those who attend the concert will hear a programme that offers a wonderful variety of music on the theme of the Nocturne.

The evening includes: John Field's Nocturne for Piano, Frederic Chopin's Nocturnes, Robert Schumann's Nachstucke, Sir Albert Bax's In the Night (Passacaglia for piano), Claude Debussy's La serenade interrompue; La soiree dans Grenade, Maurice Ravel's Noctuelles, Karol Szymanowski's La Serenade de Don Juan and Alexander Scriabin's Nocturne for the Left Hand.

Martin Roscoe

It aims to be "a dazzling programme from Martin" who has been said to be "a pianist who both thinks and offers full-blooded playing of breadth and depth. In this country, he is an uncommon creature…" Daily Telegraph. Read more about Martin at: www.martinroscoe.co.uk.

Ormskirk Music Society Orchestra and Choir - in rehearsal with choral director: Dan Adams

Orchestra to mark centenary of end of First World War

THE orchestra and choir of Ormskirk Music Society are presenting their Summer concert on Saturday, June 30 at 7.30pm at Ormskirk School.

To mark the centenary of the end of the First World War, the programme will be an Entente Cordiale, featuring the music of English and French composers.

For the occasion, musical director Jim Cooke has composed a medley for choir and orchestra - The Great War - featuring songs of the period.

The orchestra are delighted to welcome two talented soloists, Helena Cooke, the orchestra's principal flautist, who will play Cecile Chaminade's sparkling and romantic Flute Concertino, and 17-year-old Jerome Ness on guitar, a student of the Junior Royal Northern College of Music, who will play Malcolm Arnold's Serenade for Guitar and Strings.

The concert is supported by the Malcolm Arnold Trust, and also includes his Eight English Dances. And in keeping with the Great War theme, the orchestra will perform two quintessentially English pieces – Banks of Green Willow and a Shropshire Lad - by George Butterworth, a promising young composer of the era, who was killed at the Battle of the Somme.

Other French highlights include Ravel's Pavane pour une infante défunte, Fauré's Cantique de Jean Racine and Franck: Panis Angelicus.

Tickets are available online from TicketSource.co.uk, in advance from Catherine Ness (01695 556548 or catherine.oms@btinternet.com) or on the door priced at £10, £5 for under-18s and students. For more information, visit ormskirkmusicsociety.org.uk or Facebook facebook.com/OrmskirkMusicSociety.

A scene from Let It Be

Popular Beatles show returning to Empire

LET It Be: A Celebration Of The Music Of The Beatles returns to the UK for a national tour starting in Summer 2018, playing the Liverpool Empire from September 3 to 8.

The talented cast who will portray the Fab Four in the show have been revealed – coinciding with the 48th anniversary of Let It Be the album, which was released on May 8 1970.

Let It Be is the 12th and final studio album released by The Beatles – almost a month after the band split and went their separate ways. The album release also came shortly before the film of the same title opened in cinemas.

And now, Let It Be: A Celebration Of The Music Of The Beatles returns to the UK with a new second half of the popular show – giving audiences a rare glimpse of how the band may have continued as a four-piece. Fans will see The Beatles reunite for one night only, with the new section of the show set a decade after the group went their separate ways.

A cast of talented musicians will take to stages across the country as the Fab Four, wowing audiences with their effortless and indistinguishable portrayal as John, Paul, George and Ringo. The performers have already toured the show to some of the biggest stages in the world including Broadway.

The cast are revealed as Michael Gagliano who will play John Lennon; Emanuele Angeletti as Paul McCartney; John Brosnan as George Harrison; and Ben Cullingworth as Ringo Starr. The band will be joined on stage throughout the tour by musical director Michael Bramwell on keyboards.

Producer Jeff Parry commented: "I grew up listening to The Beatles, they sparked a passion for music which, for me personally, has gone on to become so much more – a career, and a way of life."

Let It Be has firmly established itself as a successful West End and international touring show. And now the smash-hit stage show has been updated and is back on tour, featuring a new Let It Be Part II – which has never been seen before in the UK.

The show is a celebration of the phenomenal music of The Beatles, and has already been seen by more than two million people worldwide, including an acclaimed run in the West End and two UK tours.

Let It Be is the ultimate experience for Beatles fans, and features many of the Fab Four's best loved songs including: A Hard Days Night, Day Tripper, Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, Twist and Shout, I Want To Hold Your Hand and Strawberry Fields Forever.

Beatles fans are invited to join John, Paul, George and Ringo for a great night of live music. Enjoy the early beginnings at the word famous Cavern Club, through to Beatlemania.

RATCLIFFE CATHERINE (KITTY)

3rd June 2018

Reunited with our beloved Dad (Tommy).
If roses grow in Heaven take a bunch for us,
Place them in our Mothers arms and tell her they're from us.
Tell her we love and miss her
and when she turns to smile,
Place a kiss upon her cheek and hold her for awhile,
Words cannot express our pain, heartache and loss,
Treasured memories we will keep.
RIP Mum

Life On Cars
DAVID SIMISTER
www.lifeoncars.co.uk

THERE are several things, I've long maintained, that I can do marginally better when I'm slightly smashed.

Singing Angels, for instance. There is not a chance on earth that I'd attempt the high notes on Robbie Williams' teary-eyed ballad in the cold, sober light of day, but given a single malt or three I might just be tempted to belt it out in front of a pub full of strangers on a Friday night. I'm dreadful at pool too, but I remain steadfastly convinced that my ability to master a cue improves ever so slightly midway through pint number three.

But my control of a Citroen C1 – or any other car, for that matter – most definitely doesn't, so I'm amazed that so many people still attempt it. In 2016, the most recent year for which figures are available, some 59,000 of us either took a breathalyser test and failed or simply refused to bother altogether. That means that on average there are at least 160 people a day taking to Her Majesty's highway who are convinced that they are X Factor-worthy pool champions. If they drive as badly as they sing, that's a terrifying thought.

Which is why the Department for Transport is cracking down on it by announcing a competition – and it's not for who can down the most Frosty Jacks before hopping behind the wheel of a Volkswagen Polo. The £350,000 prize will go to whichever company invents a mobile breathalyser so accurate that it can determine your smashed-ness without a subsequent trip to the nearest police station, and have it fitted it to a police car near you within the next 18 months. The lucky few on the raggedy edge of being hammered will no longer be able to sober up in the back of a marked Vauxhall Insignia, en-route to walking (well, swaying) free by the skin of their teeth. It will mean you'll be done for drink-driving, well and comprehensively, on the spot.

This is the best choice of car for Friday nights - unless you fancy getting nicked

Bring it on, I say. I'll defend to the death my right to wander into a nightclub while a teeny bit tipsy and dance to the Grease Megamix on a work night out in a way that I'll almost certainly regret the following morning, but no one in that state should be behind the wheel. If more accurate breathalysers make it a cast-iron certainty that you'll get nicked, then that's got to a good thing.

And anyway, there are plenty of cars that you can happily commandeer if belting through Angels badly is your thing. They're called taxis.

David Simister is the editor of Classic Car Weekly

Murray defiance not enough to save Burscough

BURSCOUGH suffered a heavy defeat at home to Southport & Birkdale who moved to the top of the First Division table, while still having a game in hand over most of their rivals.

Bradley Yates led the way with the bat for S&B with his second century of the season (111* inc 16x4 & 2x6), whilst Alex Trimboli 50 scored his maiden half century allowing Chris Firth to declare the innings on 241-5, with Daniel Unsworth taking 4-70 with the ball.

In reply Chris Andrews scored 34 early on and some late defiance from Alan Murray 51 almost salvaged a draw, but the experience of former Lancashire player Gary Keedy proved pivotal as his 5-26 off 19.1 overs helped dismiss the hosts for 134.

Second placed Orrell Red Triangle came back from the dead to record a 31 run home win over Fleetwood Hesketh, Gavin Dickenson 5-56 and Danny Murphy 4-32 combined to dismiss the one time leaders for 91. In reply, the visitors slipped from 27-0 to 60 all out, as Afaq Sartaj 4-5 and Minhaj Bhada 3-13 ripped the heart out of the lower and middle order to leave Fleetwood's travelling barmy army devastated.

Third placed Ainsdale had a comfortable nine wicket home win against Newton le Willows.

The hosts chose to bat and were soon dismissed for 97, with Sam White claiming 5-20 with the ball. In reply, Mark Lucas 51* and Brandon Faber 39* eased the hosts to 100-1 to wrap up a maximum points victory.

Robinson leads way as Ormskirk edge home by three wickets at Leigh

ORMSKIRK remain in fourth place in the Liverpool & District Cricket Competition Premier Division after a three wicket win at Leigh.

The hosts elected to bat first and were dismissed for 166, with Toby Bulcock scoring 89 of them, whilst Scott Lees was the pick of the bowlers on show for Ormskirk with 4-47.

In reply, Ian Robinson 57, Luke Platt 28 and Andy Baybutt 27 paved the way for the visitors to wrap up victory on 167-7.

Leaders Northern had a 13 run home win over Rainhill at the weekend, writes Glenn Wallworth.

After electing to bat, Northern managed to put 170-8 dec up on the board, thanks in no small part to some middle to late order runs from Justin Snow 48, Tom Jones 25* and Jack Boardman 23, whilst the pick of the bowlers were Akshay Darekar 5-68 and Ryan Williams 3-57.

In reply, Tyler McGladdery 46 and Matthew Fletcher 32 helped the visitors to 67-1, before Justin Snow 5-30 and Liam Grey 3-43 got in on the act and dismissed Rainhill for 157, giving James Cole's side a seven point lead at the top.

Second placed Formby recorded a 16 run win at Highfield.

Formby chose to bat and thanks to runs from Tim Smithies 91, Sam Oldham 50 and an unbeaten 24 from Ollie Sutton were able to declare on 210-7, with Darshan Misal 4-57 and Sam Rotherham 3-79 taking all the wickets.

In reply, Owais Shah 55, Jake Burrows 30, Misal 27 and Michael Gaskell 26 all chipped in with useful runs, before Sabbir Patel 6-64 and Lukman Vahaluwala 3-22 sealed victory for Formby with the ball as the hosts were bowled out for 194.

Third placed Bootle thrashed Colwyn Bay by ten wickets at Wadham Road.

After electing to bat the Welshmen were blown away for just 76, with Will Purser 7-39 and Chris Liptrot 3-29 taking every wicket to fall.

In reply, Will Hale hit an unbeaten 57 off 45 balls and Vishal Tripathi was undefeated on 21 as the hosts eased to victory on 80-0.

This weekend's local LDCC fixtures (1pm): Formby v Bootle, Lytham v Northern, Ormskirk v Highfield, Fleetwood Hesketh v Wigan, Prestatyn v Burscough, Southport & Birkdale v Ainsdale, Hightown St Mary's v St Helens Town, Maghull v Alder and Sutton v Southport Trinity.

Maghull fall 73 runs short at St Helens

MAGHULL suffered a 72 run defeat in their Second Division encounter at St Helens Town where Daniel Roberts 92 and Liam Gaskell 32 helped the hosts to declare on 203-8.

In reply, Anthony Molloy 32, Josh Mahoney 26 and Cam Lawrenson 22 all made decent starts but were unable to push on as the visitors were dismissed for 131.

In Southport Trinity lost a low scoring contest against Northop Hall at the Rookery.

The visitors chose to bat and were bowled out for 106 with Jamie Hodgson 27 and Jack Billington 27 scoring over half of them, whilst Jake Sunderland took 5-49 and Luke Falkiner 3-20 with the ball.

In reply, the hosts also struggled with the bat, but thanks to Shaun Robson 40 and Falkiner 15 managed to push the score up to 102-7 until Daniel Clubbe 4-42 returned into the attack and mopped up the tail leaving Trinity 105 all out just two runs short of victory.

Hightown St Mary's drew at leaders Caldy, Shaun Vosloo 48*, Jayden Schadendorf 36 and skipper Ben Ashcroft 30 helped put 201 up on the board for the visitors, with Piushan Gamekankanamge 3-38, Chris Edwards 3-40 and Haroon Khan 3-42 taking the bulk of the wickets. In reply Mark Wilkie 49 and an unbeaten 39* from Gamekankanamge almost gave the leaders victory, but some tidy bowling from Jan Gadzina 3-33 and Jim Kelly 3-43 meant honours were even as they closed on 195-7.

Skem add firepower to their attack with two new strikers

Report by Neil Leatherbarrow

HAVING lost his main marksman Scott Bakkor to Stalybridge Celtic a couple of weeks ago, Skelmersdale United manager Dave Powell has moved quickly to replace him.

He has brought in not one but two promising local strikers in the form of Kevin Edgar and Danny Boden, who have both arrived from North West Counties side Bootle.

Skem know a fair bit about them as significantly their manager at former club AFC Liverpool was Chris Stammers who is now on Dave Powell's coaching staff.

After Chris departed from AFC Liverpool in December they moved on to Bootle in February.

After bagging 15 goals in 27 games for AFC, Edgar hit another nine in 18 games for Bootle, although Boden has not been so prolific he hit ten in 28 games for AFC.

They become the second and third players on Skem's books who were at AFC Liverpool, joining left-back Jack Fleming. If they do as well as Fleming has done they will be valuable members of the side.

Speaking on the Skelmersdale United FC website, Kevin Edgar said: "I'm excited to move up to the Evo-Stik League and play for Skem, I always want to challenge myself and see how well I can do up the ladder."

Danny Boden added: "I feel excited and hungry to be joining a team like Skem who have been around for as long as I can remember, it's a great club."

Dave Powell is not letting the grass grow under his feet, Edgar and Boden are local lads and he is keen to build on the theme in inviting local players to join him at Skem, hopefully for pre-season training.

He is especially looking for players who have played at scholarship level for the many league clubs around the North West, but any promising lad will be considered.

Dave requests that the prospective players contact him via e-mail on davmar@btconnect.com.

Road to Russia

In reaching Russia 2018, by defeating Slovenia at Wembley in their penultimate Group F match, England sealed their spot at their sixth consecutive FIFA World Cup - matching their previous record set between 1950 and 1970.

England qualified with ease after they topped their group and emerged undefeated with eight wins from their ten games. They finished with 26 points – eight ahead of nearest rival Slovakia.

Who England will face in Russia:

Group G:

Belgium, Panama, Tunisia, England

Last December's draw put England in Group G with Belgium, Tunisia and Panama. Here the Champion takes a look at the opposition.

England will view Belgium as being their greatest challenge in topping the group, with Roberto Martinez's squad having some of the biggest names in the tournament.

Gareth Southgate's men will be well aware of the talents possessed by the likes of Kevin De Bruyne, Eden Hazard and Romelu Lukaku, which will make for a mouthwatering clash when the two sides meet.

Panama are a hard-working but beatable team, with an experienced leader in manager Hernan Dario Gomez, who has coached Colombia at four World Cups.

Meanwhile, Tunisia topped their qualifying group to reach Russia and have plenty of unpredictable attacking flair which England must find a way to contain.

Tournament Favourites

Germany

Reigning World Cup holders and FIFA Confederations Cup winners, Germany travel to Russia in a bid to become the first team to retain the title since Brazil in 1962. The defending champions will be gunning for their fifth World Cup and under Joachim Low they have a side which everyone will want to avoid in the knock-out stages.

Argentina

Will this be Lionel Messi's last chance to win a World Cup? The 30-year-old, considered one of football's greatest ever players, will be desperate to win a major honour with his country having already become a club legend with Barcelona.

Argentina finished third in the CONMEBOL standings for Russia 2018 qualifying, reaching the tournament on the final matchday with a 3-1 win in Ecuador and boast exciting attacking talents with the likes of Sergio Aguero and Ángel Di María.

Brazil

The most successful team in World Cup history with five trophies, Brazil went unbeaten in their final 17 World Cup qualifiers (only losing the opening game to Chile) to finish ten points clear of second-placed Uruguay. The big question will be the availability of Neymar, who Brazil are hopeful will make the World Cup, and much will depend on if he is fit. Manager Tite admits his side are still haunted by their 2014 World Cup humiliation at the hands of Germany, saying "the 7-1 defeat from the World Cup is like a ghost".

France

France have won the World Cup once, when they hosted it in 1998. They have a talented crop of players, including three of the five most expensive footballers in history, but there are question marks about how to turn these stars into a team. They've got the players but can boss Didier Deschamps work out his best starting team? They have an unbelievably talented squad, with the likes of Paul Pogba, Mbappe, Ousmane Dembele, Antoine Griezmann, Thomas Lemar and Olivier Giroud.

England

Okay, so maybe England aren't exactly favourites, but it's definitely worth taking a look at their chances anyway.

If they can beat Panama and Tunisia in their opening two games, six points will probably be enough to secure their passage into the knock-out stages, and that's without playing Belgium in their final group game.

Pessimistic fans will highlight England's weakness in defence. Gareth Southgate has a squad without an obvious first choice goalkeeper and question marks continue to remain over the central defenders.

However, with attacking talents like Harry Kane, Raheem Sterling and Dele Alli, there is cause for optimism that England can go far in this tournament.

Here's how to follow England on the telly!

The good news is that we are all guaranteed at least three England matches to enjoy during the World Cup in the group stages.

Even better news for most fans, is that the three games are unlikely to interfere with work, with two matches kicking off at 7pm and the third on a Sunday afternoon.

It means fans won't have to resort to a 4am alarm clock or 'pulling a sickie' in order to follow the Three Lions this summer!

BBC and ITV will be sharing the broadcast rights to this summer's tournament and we've included the full schedule of England's three games here:

MON JUNE 18:
Tunisia v England (Group G)
Volgograd - 7pm - BBC

SUN JUNE 24:
England v Panama (Group G)
Nizhny Novgorod - 1pm - BBC

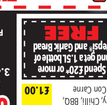
THU JUNE 28:
England v Belgium (Group G)
Kaliningrad - 7pm - ITV

Young Players to Watch Out For

Written by Tom Martin

A World Cup can provide young players with a platform to showcase their talents to the watching millions, and one kick of a ball can elevate them to national hero status.

Here, we take a look at five of the most exciting young talents, who could steal the show this summer.



Timo Werner

Nationality: German
Club: RB Leipzig
Age: 21

Werner only made his senior debut for his country last year, but by this time he was already known across Germany.

Having become the youngest player to ever appear and score for Stuttgart, he made a move to the ambitious RB Leipzig in 2016.

He went on to become the youngest player to ever reach 100 and150 Bundesliga appearances, as well as being the youngest player to score two goals in a top-flight match in Germany.

Last year, he helped Germany claim the 2017 FIFA Confederations Cup when his return of three goals earned him the tournament's Golden Boot award.

He has already been linked with a big money transfer to Liverpool, and a successful World Cup could see even more teams interested in signing him.

Marcus Rashford

Nationality: English
Club: Manchester United
Age: 20

We couldn't not include an England player in the list, and although it seems like Rashford has been around for years, it's worth reminding ourselves that he's still only 20.

Perhaps a reason why fans feel he's older than this is due to the experience gained already in his short career. Rashford has nearly 80 appearances for Manchester United and played for England in the Euro 2016 tournament. The forward scored on his international debut in May 2016, becoming the youngest English player to score in his first senior international match.

Marco Asensio

Nationality: Spanish
Club: Real Madrid
Age: 22

You must be a special player if you are keeping Gareth Bale out of the Real Madrid team. And that's exactly what Spanish sensation Asensio has been doing this season after taking La Liga by storm after making his first appearance for the Galacticos in 2016. Asensio has been a key performer for Spain at the youth levels, including a stellar showing at last summer's European Under 21 Championship. He's yet to score for the senior side, but he'll be a dangerous impact player in Russia.

Hirving Lozano

Nationality: Mexican
Club: PSV Eindhoven
Age: 22

When we think of Mexican footballers, we immediately think of their flair players such as Javier Hernandez and Giovani dos Santos, but now we can add 22-year-old Lozano to that list. His style of play speaks for itself. He's not afraid to run at defences and take his man on and the youngster is sure to do damage in Russia. A winger who can shoot off both feet, he will give defenders a lot to think about this summer. Lozano received his first senior call-up to the national team in February 2016 and has gone on to score seven goals in 25 appearances.

Gabriel Jesus

Nationality: Brazilian
Club: Manchester City
Age: 20

Although Jesus' season with the Premier League champions has been affected through injury, he will still be one of the most feared strikers at this summer's World Cup. The 20-year-old can line up anywhere across the attack, and usually keeps Liverpool's Roberto Firmino on the bench. His combination of pace, technical quality, finishing and world-class movement will frighten any defence.

Luzhniki Stadium, the main stadium for Russia 2018 was originally built to host the first nationwide summer Spartakiad in 1956. Since then, Luzhniki Stadium has hosted a multitude of major sporting and cultural events, including the 1980 Summer Olympics, world championships in ice hockey, athletics and rugby and concerts featuring some of the world's greatest musicians. Throughout this period, however, football has played a special role, with the stadium having hosted more than 3,000 matches.

Kaliningrad Stadium was built for Russia 2018 on Oktyabrsky Island, right in the heart of Kaliningrad. The selection of Kaliningrad as a host city has prompted the local authorities to develop the island, which for many centuries has been a wilderness, left largely untouched. After the 2018 World Cup, a new residential development will be built around the stadium, with parks, quays and embankments alongside the Pregola river.

Volgograd Arena was built on the site of the Central stadium, at the foot of the Mamayev Kurgan war memorial. The location of the previous stadium is a Mecca for local football supporters, with the more seasoned among them able to remember European victory over Manchester United and domestic battles with Spartak Moscow.

Ekaterinburg Arena is home to FC Ural, the stadium was built in 1953. Since then, it has been refurbished on a number of occasions. The last of these refits has been made for the 2018 FIFA World Cup™. On each occasion, however, the stadium's historical façade remained untouched, as an architectural legacy. Architectural and decorative features typical of Soviet neo-Classicism were used lavishly in the construction of the stands.

Fisht Stadium was built for the Winter Olympics in February 2014, and hosted the opening and closing ceremonies. The stadium has been reconstructed for the 2018 FIFA World Cup™ and was re-opened in 2017, where the venue hosted FIFA Confederations Cup matches.

Kazan Arena was built in preparation for the Summer World University Games in 2013, when it hosted the opening and closing ceremonies. A football pitch was installed once the games were over. The stadium hosted its first match in August 2013, when Rubin Kazan drew 1:1 with Lokomotiv Moscow, and also served as a FIFA Confederations Cup 2017 venue.

Nizhny Novgorod Stadium is being built in one of the city's most picturesque locations, at the confluence of the Volga and Oka rivers, near the Alexander Nevsky Cathedral. The area offers a wonderful view of the Nizhny Novgorod Kremlin, situated on the other side of the Oka.

Samara Arena will be built in the Radiotsentr district. Under current plans, the stadium will be surrounded by a residential development and good-quality infrastructure. Stadium construction officially started on 21 July 2014.

Rostov Arena is situated on the left bank of the Don River. Buoyed by its selection as a host city, Rostov-on-Don will be able to expand in size by developing its left bank, where the local tourism facilities and restaurants have traditionally attracted locals and visitors alike.

Spartak Stadium: Spartak Moscow, the "people's team", is one of Russia's most popular football clubs. And yet, ever since it was founded in 1922, it has had to make do without its own stadium. The club has played home games at Moscow's Dynamo, Luzhniki and Lokomotiv stadiums, at the Khimki Arena just outside Moscow and even in Ekaterinburg.

Saint Petersburg Stadium is built on the site of the Kirov Stadium on Krestovsky Island, which, in its day, was one of the country's largest stadiums, with a capacity of 110,000. The tender to build Saint Petersburg Stadium was won by the renowned Japanese architect Kisho Kurosawa. The stadium hosted the Opening Match and Final of the 2017 FIFA Confederations Cup.

Work on Mordovia Arena began in 2010, the 1000th anniversary of the unification of the Mordovian people with Russia's other ethnic groups. The arena is located in the centre of the city, on the bank of the Insar river.
